التدخل.. INTERVENE
COMPLY. RESPECT. الاحترام.

Safety days provide a great opportunity for all staff to engage and discuss ways to improve safety performance. Since introduced back in 2007, many topics were featured and this has helped in raising the awareness level across the organization. Looking at past performance in safety, it was evident that more focus is needed to get the 'BASICS' right and as a result we embarked on a journey to get the fundamentals of the HSE 'Golden Rules' (Comply, Intervene & Respect) imbedded into our ways of working. 2014 was all about "Comply", the first pillar of the Golden Rules.

What You Need to Know

Why Intervene?:

We intervene because:

- We care for each other
- To save lives and prevent injuries
- To create a safer working environment.

When to intervene?:

Whenever we observe an unsafe act or condition. Remember it is your right, your responsibility to intervene because we care for each other.

Did you intervene?:

Although intervention is difficult, we have received amazing stories on intervention at work and away from work from your feedback. Keep up the good work and continue to intervene.

The 2015 Safety Day theme focuses on "Intervene" the second pillar of the Golden Rules which is fundamental to our lives and our business. PDO Managing Director Raoul Restucci said: "I know it's not easy, it takes courage. Sometimes you receive push-back, and some colleagues may even say "It is none of your business" but it is, it's your right, your responsibility to intervene because we should all care." The sessions relayed useful tips to make a successful intervention, such as pointing out to the person at risk the human, financial and environmental consequences of their actions and in a polite, positive and respectful way.
